SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. Petros Kokalis, Minister of Public Welfare in the Markos Junta, is reported to have been in Athens to negotiate for the ending of guerrilla warfare. He arrived in the capital following an understanding reached by Liberal Party members with the British in Athens.

25X1X 2. [REDACTED] these negotiations failed because the Americans are unalterably opposed to any understanding with the guerrillas and insist on the unconditional surrender of the Andartes.

3. Contacts with Kokalis were made by Koutsopetalos and Glavanis (a lieutenant of Sophocles Venizelos), both deputies of the Liberal Party. The negotiations took place with the full knowledge of Constantine Rendis, Minister of Public Order, before 1 May 1948.
